Description

A fine quality early 19th century Regency period mahogany LIBRARY BOOKCASE in particularly good original condition. This elegant bookcase features a "restrained" frieze of vertical veneers below the plain cornice, whilst further below, the two glazed doors open to reveal three adjustable shelves, making four in all. The glazing to these doors is most attractive, with slender glazing bars; lovely 'wavy' glass and the original working lock. The base section has twin 'book-matched' figured mahogany doors, with beaded decoration, which open to reveal fitted three shelves within, also adjustable, and it is supported on a plinth base. An attractive and most useful bookcase of quite compact size. 7ft 3ins high; 4ft wide. (220 x 122 cms).
