Description

An attractive mid-19th century FRENCH MANTLE CLOCK of compact size and in full working order. Standing just over 11 inches high, the pretty case is of good white marble, the drum movement being "supported" by two ormolu cherubs, with further ormolu mounts to the base and ormolu feet. The eight-day movement strikes hours and half-hours on a bell and is complete with its original ornate pendulum. The dial is very pretty with coloured garlands below the numerals, whilst the ornate pierced hands are also original. A good quality French clock: 11.5ins high; 8.75ins wide. (29cms x 21.5cms)
