AN ITALIAN GLASS FLOWER CHANDELIER

Description

Circa 1910-1940, this Murano glass chandelier is made in the old style where the flowers and leaves slot into position. We have photographed it so the 'insides' can be seen, but once the light is hung on the ceiling, the wooden block isn't visible through the ornate glass surrounding it. It was rewired by the previous owner. The light measures 74cm in length and approximately 63cm at the widest point, and has three lights facing downwards from the original glass shades. There are three upright glass flowers, three leaves that come down from the centre and three lovely twisted leaves that stand upright. For delivery purposes, we would remove the glass flowers and leaves to package separately ensuring safe transit. Quotes for delivery costs in the UK can be obtained by our couriers, who we find very reasonable, but because of the fragile nature of the light we would prefer not to post it. Alternatively, viewing and collection from Surrey can be arranged.
