Description

A small very elegant late 18th century table that would look stunning as a lamp table or beside a sofa. It is an hexagonal table, polished all the way round so completely free standing. The exquisite top has yew wood veneers fanning out from a central small circle. Every edge including the legs are ebony strung. It has a cross stretcher supporting the elegant slim square tapered legs. The top lifts to reveal a perfectly fitting tray for needlework. This can be removed. It is all in excellent condition, having a lovely patina. A really pretty piece - the photos do not do it justice. 19" x 14" 28" high
