Description

A fine pair of softwood painted Venetian Blackamoor Torcheres, beautifully carved and decorated in black and gold paint, with an upper candleabra conversion, with hand crafted metal gilt leaves attached, having been cut out and made from thin steel sheet. They have been rewired in the recent past and have been fitted with modern flame effect bulbs. The tops of the torchers have been fitted with a modern looking collar to secure the metal candleabra attachment and arms above. The condition is fair for the age and there are signs of careful restoration and some retouching. Further tidying would be fairly easy and would benefit them further. They are great antique examples, with similar modern copies seen regularly, still achieving high prices.
