Description

Circa 1900-1940 this is an unusual lamp made of white porcelain and ormolu with a lovely decorative base showing cherubs around the sides. The lamp measures 61cm in height from the base of the lamp holder; the ormolu base with three scroll feet is approximately 23cm at the widest point. It is very heavy and has been well made. On each of the three sides of the base cherubs holding tambourines - seen photo 1. We haven't polished the ormolu as many of our clients prefer us to leave things alone, but a light clean may enhance the details. Our electrician recently rewired it using silk flex cable, fitted it with an online switch and replaced the candle tube. It is extremely heavy, and the price includes postage and packing within the UK mainland only. For delivery elsewhere and abroad, please contact us for a quote.
