Description

Unusual Edwardian bookcase c.1910. Glazed two door top over a considerably wider two door cupboard base. Despite unusual proportions it is not a marriage – note how the reeded detail beside the doors is repeated in the base. Possibly originally made for commercial or office use rather than a domestic piece with the wider base affording a useful bit of counter space. Lots of unusual detail here; mirrored sides presumably to reflect lamp light, a shaped front profile to the bookcase top (bowing out as it rises), bobbin turned spindles to the cornice repeated as supports in a recess between the top and base, also with mirrored panels and geometric panelled doors to the base. With a maker's label for the Liverpool company Drury & Hobrough. Presented here in good solid but unrestored condition. Details Dimensions: width 56", depth 21", height 90". Year: c.1910
