An unusual 19th century storage trunk

Price

SoldItem Reference: SA333721*Date of manufacture: 1880

Description

A most unusual wedge-shaped mid-to-late 19th century storage trunk in hardwood – most probably teak – with end elevations of tapering form. The lid, with its restraining chain to keep it upright when in use, opens on its two hinges to reveal a single storage compartment. Its shape cleverly lends itself to acting as a display plinth, but would equally double as a small low table. This eyecatching storage box – its original purpose unknown – is English, c.1860s/c.1880s, and has its original finish with a good rich colour. There is a working lock and key. . . Width 27.75" (705mm) Height 13.5" (345mm) Depth from front to back at ground level 19.75" (505mm) . . IF YOU'D LIKE TO KNOW MORE...
