Description

A particularly good quality George III period solid mahogany BUTLER'S TRAY of unusual design and good warm colour. The four sides are all beautifully shaped, with pierced carrying handles, and all these are hinged, retaining their original brass hinges. A very good example. * These trays were usually kept in the kitchen, on very basic stands, where breakfast would be prepared. This was then carried up to the Master's bedroom (leaving the stand behind) where the meal could be enjoyed in the comfort of the bed!
