Description

An immaculate, pagoda top, Westminster/Ave-maria chiming Grandmother clock. The black japanned case is adorned with raised gold and red images and is a sight to behold. It has a pagoda top with Gilt finials, arched, fretted side panels and enclosing the arched brass dial. There is a long door to the trunk and a raised and fielded panel to the base. Both the hood door and the trunk door are key lockable. The arched brass dial has a chapter ring marked in Roman numerals with an outside count ring marked with Arabic 5 min markers. It has gilt spandrels and a subsidiary dial in the top to select Westminster or Ave-maria striking. It plays the selected tune at the quarters and the hours. It is fitted with independent STRIKE/SILENT to both the quarters and the hours. The high quality movement has just been serviced by our BHI registered staff. This is a clock that has been carefully cared for throughout its life and looks close to new in its presentation. An equivalent clock today would cost many thousands of pounds. Dimensions;
