Description

A superb Regency mahogany library or writing table attributed to Williams & Gibton Dublin. Stamped on the underside. The Irish firm of Williams and Gibton (1830 -44) are listed as Cabinetmakers, upholsteres , Auctioners, Valuators and House agents. They evolved from the well known firm of Mack, Williams and Gibton (1811-29) who were at 39 Stafford Street, Dublin and were appointed Upholsters & Cabinet Makers to his Majesty, His Excellency and Lord Lietenant and His Majesty's Board of Works in 1806. They supplied for some of the most important public buildings in Ireland, including the Four Courts, the war Office, the Barracks Office, Dublin Castle, the Chapel Royal and the Treasury and Viceregal Lodge. Simultaneously they were commissioned to produce furniture for many of the grandest Irish country houses such as Ballynegall, Co. Westmeath, Oakley Park, Co.Meath and Strokestown, Co. Roscommon. See Knight of Glin, Dublin Directories and Trade Lables, Furniture History, 1985 and A.Alexander, The Dublin Cabinet- Makers in the early 19th Century: Furnishing with Style, Irish Furniture, The Furniture History Society. 54 inches wide. 26 1/4 inches deep. 28 1/2 inches ...
