Description

Antique Joint Stool, Padded Leather Locker Seat, Carved Victorian, English Oak. Antique joint, or locker, stool from the mid-Victorian period c.1860. Judiciously made from English oak, this delightful piece bears charm and practicality. The stool has a warmth and wonderful patina whilst the turned, splayed legs united by generous stretchers offer stability and strength. The traditionally stuffed leather seat pad is edged and finished with a further leather strap and brass stud work. The seat pad lifts on the original cast iron hinges to reveal a storage compartment within. In pleasing proportion the piece is modestly decorated, with a deep relief, carved field panel and would make a great addition to a hallway or fireside. A truly gorgeous antique presented in good antique condition with solid joints, waxed and polished ready for the home.
