Description

RICHARD WEBSTER, LONDON: a particularly fine quality late 18th century mahogany BRACKET CLOCK in full working order. The case is of superbly figured "flame" mahogany retaining a lovely warm colour and patina with a cast brass handle and brass inlay around the 'bell' top and the side windows. The 8-day movement retains its original verge escapement striking and repeating hours at will. The well-engraved & silvered dial is fully signed, with "Strike/Silent" in the arch. The signature is repeated on the beautifully engraved backplate. A really lovely English bracket clock. * Richard Webster, a member of the famous clockmaking family, worked at Exchange Alley, London 1787-1808.
