Description

I am delighted to offer for sale this large French oil portrait painting on canvas of a beautiful society lady. > The portrait depicts an influential and elegantly dressed lady from what the French call the La Belle Epoque period, which is a date between 1890 and 1915 > The lady is very well dressed in the style of the period in a high collared dress with capping over the sleeves and frilled cuffs in eau de nil and pink with darker green accents. > In this period there was much emphasis on the width of the shoulders - it was the first example of 'power dressing'. High necks were in fashion possibly because of Princess Alexandra. > Her auburn hair is piled up on top of her head and she is wearing a large ring on her left hand. Her left hand is holding a closed fan. She is seated in a painted arm chair. > MOIRINAT PARIS The canvas was purchased by the artist from a French artists' suppliers and gallery called Moirinat, which was situated in the Rue Faubourg St. Honore in Paris and bears their stamp on the reverse. > The stretcher has a central bar for added stability and to prevent warping. > BEAUTIFUL ORNATE FRAME The painting was purchased unframed and has since been...
