Description

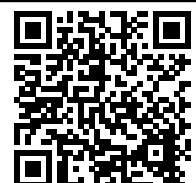

A very good quality burr walnut writing desk with leathered inset top. This well proportioned and good sized desk has a rectangular top with a crossbanded edge retaining its original leather insert with gilt tooling. With a moulded edge the top sits over a fine edge central drawer flanked by two deeper drawers each having a ovolo moulded edge and all being oak lined with solid brass swan neck handles having shaped back plates and central brass escutcheons and locks. The desk is freestanding as it has a veneered and polished back so can stand within the center of a room study if needed. With recessed canted corners this fine antique desk dating to 1900's stands on ornate walnut hand carved rams head cabriole legs with bell flowers terminating on pad feet. In excellent condition having been fully restored using traditional methods this very useful desk of good proportions has a fantastic warm mellow colour with fine veneers which will make a statement in any home.
