Description

This well-detailed, titled CAST IRON BUST of DISRAELI, the EARL OF BEACONSFIELD, sits on a black glazed, pottery socle. The name BEACONSFIELD is inscribed to a tablet at the base of his waistcoat. The BEACONSFIELD title was created in 1876 which helps to date the bust to around 1880, as he died in 1881. Overall the condition is good. There are two or three surface chips to the socle. There is a circular metal plug to the top of his head (please see photograph) which could suggest the bust was, at one time, a lamp. Height: 11 inches (28 cm) Diameter of Base: 6.5 inches (16.5 cm)
