Description

A fantastic quality large oak studio easel by the famous firm Winsor and Newton from London. In lovely condition this large adjustable oak easel has its original winding handle and makers plate inset " Winsor and Newton Ltd London W". It has a delightful double winding mechanism one which alters the height and another which bring the easel forward and backward also it has adjustable front leg which turns for balance with the whole being raised on its original porcelain castors. This is one of the best model easel's which would have cost a vast amount in the Victorian times to have purchased and I can only presume the artist who originally owned it would have been very good and /or famous. Ever since 1832, when Winsor and Newton was founded, the artists' materials and equipment manufactured by this firm have generally been considered among the best in terms of quality, consistency and durability, and these are all elements exemplified in the present lot. From the start, William Winsor and Henry Newton developed a close working relationship with painters at the forefront of the art world including the renowned Joseph Mallord William Turner (1775-1851) Dimensions: Width: ...
