Description

Antique Card Table Edwardian small demi-lune card-table. This is a very attractive card table that has many uses in the modern home. It would be especially good in a hall-way where its un-usual small size makes it just right for a narrow passage. The table is of a demi-lune shape which gives a lovely soft look and then a circle when the table is opened for gaming. This antique card table has an inset green playing surface. The top has satinwood cross-banding as well as box stringing, with the legs having intricate designs running down the front surface and then finishing in brass square cup castors. The antique card table also has the attractive feature of inlaid swags around the frieze.
