Description

A fine quality and unusual Regency concave two door side cabinet / sideboard in flame mahogany dating to 1825. This very attractive mahogany sideboard / cabinet of concave form has a solid mahogany top above a moulded edge and two oak lined frieze drawers with crossbanding to the frame and ebony beading having brass ring handles and central inverted panel. Below which are two crossbanded and flame veneered panelled doors which open to reveal a central shelf for storage flanked by inverted panels to either side. This Regency cabinet is raised on reeded front bun feet and has retained a lovely mellow faded colour having been fully restored using traditional methods. A very good quality item of furniture in excellent condition which will compliment any home.
