Description

A very fine quality Queen walnut dressing table. Oak carcase and original oak lined segmented drawers made c. 1710. Exceptionally thick walnut across the whole piece in excellent condition and complete and original with minor shrinkage to the top consistent with age. The moulded top with notched corners and feather crossbanded borders. the frieze fitted with six drawers with featherbanding and brass drop handles with snape fasteners. The cabriole legs carved with acanthus leaf and scrolled hocks terminating in pad feet. Very beautiful and elegant English dressing table of lovely proportions in exemplary condition. Some earlier handle marks, usual and not significant. The drawer frames lipped with convex crossbanded beading. A separate toilet mirror would have been placed on the table when used as a dressing table and when the mirror was not needed, the table would have been used as a writing or side table. In superb original condition - with truly excellent patination and well developed colour. This dressing table is a very fine collector's piece and would retail in a London dealership for more than £6,000. Dimensions are: 30 inches high, 44 inches wide ...
