Description

An excellent high quality late Victorian mahogany longcase clock with Westminster Chime. The movement is of 8 day duration and strikes the quarter hours on four coiled gongs and the main hour on a larger gong. The silvered brass convex dial is engraved with the retailers/makers name, foliage, Arabic numerals and minutes. Also with a strike/silent facility and blued steel hands. The high quality mahogany veneered case has a long glazed trunk door enclosing three large brass weights and a pendulum. The whole case depicts an Ionic column and capital which is carved below the main dial. The base features a shaped plinth and an applied ogee moulding to the main panel. The drum shaped hood has a lockable wooden bezel encasing the dial behind a convex glass and is carved with oak leaves and acorns. A very unusual late Victorian longcase clock which would be the perfect interior design statement. Note: This clock may have originally been purchased as part of a set of furniture by the first owner. John Maple opened a small furnishing shop in the mid 19th century in Tottenham Court Road, London. By the 1880's with the help of his son Sir John Blundell Maple the business beca...
