Description

South-West Persian kilims were often bold in design and generally made quickly to use as utilitarian items i.e. for hanging in the tents to compartmentalise areas and for covering the bedding around the sides of the tent. This handsome kilim was woven by Qashqa'i nomads around 1880 and is in overall, good condition bar a few areas of some light staining. This is all reflected in the very reasonable price. Size: 2.44m x 1.50m (8' 0" x 5' 0").
