SoldItem Reference: SA395431*Date of manufacture: 1800

Description

An interesting early/mid 19th century CASED PISTOL known as the "Manstopper", complete with powder flask; bullet mould and various large lead balls. The pistol itself is of engraved steel, with a screw-off barrel of considerable calibre ~ hence its ability to presumably stop a man in his tracks! It has a solid walnut stock and when cocked, the trigger descends to enable it to be used. A formidable weapon ~ possibly Irish?
