Description

RARE pair of mid 18th century George II period Sterling silver salt spoons of typical design for the period. Nice shape pierced handles with shell shape bowls and ring decoration near the bowl. Obviously these small spoons are of significant age so there is some slight damage. One spoon is basically perfect with only minimal wear. The other spoon has cracked damage to the bowl as can be seen in the pictures and I think the handle may have been silver soldered up near the fret section. Having said all that salt spoons from this early period are not common. SIZE; 4 1/4" long
