Description

This little cut glass hall light has a bronze frame holding the glass bowl into position with three fixings, and it still has all of the original chains. The frame has a decorative edge underneath, visible when the light is hung in situ. The light is approximately 17cm in diameter around the frame; the bowl is approximately 13cm deep, and each chain is 28cm in length. The light would hang from an existing light source with the light bulb dangling into the bowl. We darkened one photo so that the quality of the glass could be shown clearly, but would be happy to send more images if required. Postage and packing within the UK mainland only is included in the price, and for delivery elsewhere, please ask us for a quote.
