Description

A most attractive Late 18th / Early 19th Century Antique English Georgian Copper Coffee Pot of medium size and brazed seam construction, rising elegantly from a spreading foot. Simply oozing character with a few dings acquired through decades of everyday use, but with lovely mounts and a well turned side handle, probably of fruitwood, the hinged cover and finial all in good order. A desirable accessory for the period kitchen, but increasingly difficult to source in today's marketplace.
