Description

This handsome mahogany chest of drawers was made in around 1760 and is solid mahogany with oak lined drawers and many fine quality details including a deeply crossbanded boarder to the top with stepped ogee outline, beautiful reeded columns to either flank and substantial ogee bracket feet. The brass handles and escutcheons are original and all locks are present and appear original also. . At only 3 feet wide and having a lovely well developed colour, the chest has beautifully small proportions yet offers lots of storage space in very strong oak lined and dovetailed drawers. . This chest is over 250 years old and like all antique furniture it has had a life and has some minor marks and wear as follows: a small dark mark to the top on the front left hand corner, some old shrinkage cracks to the top and one to the right hand side panel (due to natural movement in the wood over the centuries, very old and not going anywhere). . The chest came from a private address and has been very well cared for. The handles have been cleaned regularly over the years with brasso giving them a lovely soft appearance and colour but causing a darker halo to the mahogany around the han...
