Description

A fine and quite early French CARRIAGE CLOCK almost certainly by Drocourt. This pretty, high quality carriage clock retains the original gilding to the "gorge" case with ribbed handle; large square glass to the top and bevelled glass panels all around. The 8-day movement, with original platform, strikes hours and half-hours on a bell; the dial is original as are the blued steel Breguet "moon" hands. A pretty and quite early French carriage clock. *Many carriage clocks including early high quality examples are often not signed. Clocks by Alfred Drocourt (always of excellent quality) usually have distinct location holes below the lever platform and a unique style of engraving to the word "Hands" on the backplate.
