Description

Fine late C19th French equestrian bronze of a mounted huntsman on a carved ovoid alabaster plinth base. Detailed bronze of a traditionally-attired French huntsman carrying a horn, wearing a hunting dagger on his belt and mounted upon an elegant steed. Excellent casting, patina and attention to detail to both the rider and his mount. Portrayed in a relaxed yet attentive pose, twisted in the saddle in watchful mode. The bronze statue stands freely upon the attractive carved alabaster plinth base with flower and ribbon decoration and fluted detail. The stand possibly associated but proves a highly successful combination. Good consistent patina and dark colour. The stone base with minor chips, scratches and wear commensurate with age and use. H(overall) 17.5" H(bronze) 13.5" W 15" D (base) 8" France c.1890
