Description

A Chinese style, late 19th century, mahogany kettle stand having a pierced fret gallery above a blind fret decoration around the sides. The straight tapered legs also have pierced brackets. It has the original finish - there are marks to the top but we do not consider them to be detrimental to the piece. Take a look at the photos. It stands at 24" high and the depth and width are just over 11". Useful in any room as an occasional table or even a bedside piece.
