Description

Absolutely beautiful William Moorcroft vase and cover, or possibly tobacco jar, designed and made by William Moorcroft in the early 20th Century. It is in the stunning art nouveau Florian style 'Poppy' design and bears the patent stamp "rd.no.326471" but it is in the beautiful dark blues and greens of later pieces, dating it to around 1915 or later. It is signed on the base with William Moorcroft's full signature. It is a stunning piece, demonstrating the handpainted tubelined designs that made William Moorcroft famous. The design is set on a deep royal blue background showing a repeating pattern of central flowers with stylised leaves surrounding it in a symmetrical art nouveau design. The jar stands approximately 5 1/2" (14cm) tall. The diameter across the top is 3 1/2" (9cm) and approximately 5" (13cm) at its widest point. It is a very rare piece and it displays beautifully. There is no damage to the main body of the vase however there are some small areas of damage around the lid and inner rim, all of which I have closely photographed. Underneath the lid there are some small nibbles and also on the inner rim, on which the lid sits. On top of the lid there is a sma...
