Early C19th French Empire-style walnut and fruitwood console table with gilded brass classical-style mounts. Smart hall or console table of practical proportions and height, fitted with a frieze drawer. The twin-plank figured walnut top above a frieze supported by classically-inspired architectural columns having entasis to the shafts, and fitted with contrasting carved fruitwood rings and Tuscan-style capitals. The columns from well-chosen figured timber. The rear raised on flat-section supports. The under-tier base raised on shaped fore feet. The centre of the frieze drawer with a classical design gilt-brass mount featuring the Goddess of Plenty with cornucopia riding on a cloud in a cherub-drawn chariot, and corresponding classical dancing maidens to the top corners. The lower tier frieze with a central classical gilt-brass flower-head and leaf mount. In excellent original condition, minor shrinkage cracks to the rear of the lower base platform.
