Description

This magnificent rug was made by Timuri tribes in western Afghanistan during the last quarter of the 19th century. The field design consists of Turkmen-type guls which appear to disappear under the borders and out into infinity. Therefore the borders are simply capturing a small part of that infinite pattern and protecting the inner paradise from evil spirits getting in. The light-coloured guls and the outer 'tree' border pattern, are knotted in camel-hair. Size: 1.63m x 0.91m (5' 4" x 3' 0").
