Description

A superb Edwardian dressing case in a fabulous purple crocodile leather and purple silk moiré lining by the renowned retailer Mawson, Swan and Morgan of Newcastle. This luxurious travelling case contains most of the original fittings, including silver backed mirror, brushes, bottles and jars. The silver accessories are of a high quality and are hallmarked London, 1905. The case also contains an array of travelling essentials in a matching purple leather and similarly lined in a silk moiré, these items include:- a jewellery box, needle case, card case and manicure set (incomplete). There is also a letter opener, glove stretchers and a small white metal spirit heater (to warm curling tongs), housed in a silvered metal box. The condition of the case is generally very good, there is evidence of a small early repair to the front of the case, but this is not easily visible. There is wear and cracking to the handle, as you would expect with a much used antique case. The leather and contents are stamped in gold lettering with the makers name, this is a wonderful example of a luxurious and high quality travelling case from an era of style and glamour c.1905 Width: 16" (41cm) Dept...
