Description

A very good quality George III mahogany bow fronted chest of drawers with ebony stringing and original brass spun knob handles Circa 1800. Having a fine bow fronted rectangular "plum pudding" mahogany top with ebony stringing and crossbanded mahogany edge retained by an ebonised strung edge. The top sits over three figured mahogany drawers with cockbeaded surround, central locks and original brass spun knob handles. It is extremely rare to have original brass knob handles and these are in good condition with the bottom few having some minor denting to the outside ring which is to be expected and can be seen on the images. This lovely Georgian chest of drawers is raised on very elegant splay feet with a shaped central apron. In excellent condition having been restored using traditional methods. The choice cuts of timber that have been used have mellowed to a beautiful colour. A good practical chest of drawers that will work in most rooms of the house.
