Description

This three leaf mahogany dining table has just come out of our workshops following a check of the joints and now having been re french polished to bring out its original splendor. Now showing great colour and grain it will grace any dining room. Although being totally comfortable for 12 people it would seat 16 on holidays and high days. Being 54 inches wide it will take two chairs between the legs on the end, as can be seen in the pictures and 6 chairs down the sides. It is however, as stated, most at ease with 12 people who will then have plenty of dining space. The total length is 10ft when fully extended with the three loose leaves, it can of course be used with any combination to suit your own requirements. This early 19th Century (Wm IV) table has a god rounded corner and a rather finely detailed turned and rope carved leg which sits on the original above average castors.
