Description

This is an original early 19th Century Mahogany three pedestal dining table in great condition. It has lovely graining and the king wood crossbanding around the edge. A truly impressive and most useable example with brass cap castors on the end of each leg. There are two leaves of 16 inches each that can be removed if you wanted to keep it a little smaller. It will seat 10 with ease and 12 if required. The Chippendale set of 12 around this table at the moment are possibly a little large for this table to seat 12 people. We do have a set of 10 currently available though. We also have a fantastic early mahogany twin pedestal with central support legs that will seat 14 / 16 people in our store rooms. There are also other chairs that may appeal to the new owner if chairs are required. This is a good table (not reproduction). It is keenly priced for an original triple pedestal table it is unlikely you can find another table of this quality and in such tidy condition for similar money.
