Description

Edwardian mahogany extending dining table. The table is an even colour there is a lot of REFLECTION on the images. This table has been totally repolished in the traditional manner, no spraying or lacquers are used. Here we have this high quality mahogany extending dining table that has 2 leaf extensions. Made circa 1910 this table can be used with any combination of leaves. The table extends using a simple but highly engineered winding mechanism using a handle. The table is oval when no leaves are inserted, and then can be used with 1 leaf added or both. The table stands on tapering square legs with inset arched panels before ending on brass castors.
