Description

Antique mid-Victorian mahogany linen press dating to around the 1860 period, in good condition. It has all the classic features of the Victorian period, with the round corners, arched panelled top doors, original sliding trays inside, original glass handle on the door, bun handles on the drawers & the plinth base. It also has a bold top cornice, which can lift off. The two main sections also lift apart. This press has just been restored & French polished, so everything works fine. The mahogany has a lovely grain, especially on the top doors. If needed, the sliding tray shelves can be taken out & a hanging bar put in, but one should always keep those trays, because these linen presses are always worth a lot more with them in. Width - 47.6", 121 cm Depth - 21", 53 cm Height - 82", 208 cm
