Description

Circa 1910-1930, this pair of glass lustre lamps are almost a complete pair except they have a different number of lustres. The shape, size, design of the lamps are identical, but at the top one has twelve cut glass lustre supports, and one has ten. See Photos 1 and 2. However, we are selling them as a pair because they were originally together and the difference is too slight to separate them. The lamps measure 36cm up to the lamp holder; the glass column is 26cm. The base is approximately 12.5cm in diameter and the glass dishes at the top are slightly bigger at approximately 13cm in diameter. They have been rewired by a qualified electrician with flex cable and fitted with an online switch; he replaced the candle tubes because the others were damaged. The lamps are in excellent condition as are the lustres, and we replaced some of the old brass fittings to hold the lustres in position because the old ones were worn and broken in places. We have included postage and packing within the UK mainland only in the price, but the lamps can be viewed by appointment in Surrey as we no longer have a retail outlet. For delivery outside the UK mainland and abroad, please con...
