Description

Rare 1930s Art Deco Walnut Display Cabinet This has to be one of the rarest examples of the Art Deco display cabinets. In twenty years + this is our only second example! If you want a focal point or a wow factor in a room then this is just the ticket. Not only does it look superb but is functional too, housing your special collections. Wonderful figured veneers adorn the outside with the fabulous two doors which are segmented into a pattern of petals. The inside the cabinet still retains it's original duck egg blue silk cloth backing. Although still perfectly functional it might be possible to clean this but we've left as is. However we have fully restored the outside so it comes to you in excellent condition. There is open shelving either side of the cabinet too, ideal for books etc or just as another display area.
