Description

Antique William IV Rosewood circular dining table in excellent original condition, dating from around the 1830-40's period. The rosewood grain & pattern on the top is very distinctive. As you can see in the images, the top can be tilted vertical, which is quite useful to fit in a corner of a room. The top can also be taken off for easy transportation. There is a central octagonal column under the top, which in turn sits on a platform base with bun feet below & concealed casters under those. This is a very good example of this kind of table, because it's rosewood, very stable, plus free from warps & splits. It will seat four comfortably & six at a pinch. Diameter - 48", 122 cm Height - 29", 74 cm
