Description

Could this be a perfect present perhaps? This heart shaped mahogany toilet mirror from the Edwardian period is in lovely clean condition. It is great quality and of course most useful. The inlaid drawers hold all those bits and pieces that are better out of the way, the clean mirror with the bevel edge is good for make up or hair. The Sheraton style handles are original and typical of the revival that took place around the turn of the century. There are the impressive little solid brass turnings on the top of the arms that hold the mirror and everything sits on the neat splay bracket feet. A lovely item in superb condition.The width shown is maximum on the outside of the splay foot, likewise the depth.
