Description

This is certainly an item that will not be repeated in a hurry. This dressing table has lovely colour and most impressive inlays and the quartered veneers. Dating from the early 1900s, Almost certainly French this is Deco or maybe a touch earlier and was certainly a piece of furniture that had a awful lot of time spent on it to make it this impressive. There are a couple of blemishes on the top, they are minor and we have made sure the pictures show them, however they are not really noticeable either in the pictures or in the flesh. The mirror has an age related mark, this has not been replaced as it is original and has the bevel to its edge. It could be changed if required but we would suggest keeping it correct. There are two useful little trinket drawers at the bottom of the arms and a most useful row of drawers below the top. All the drawers boast lovely inlays and quartered veneers too. For such a great looking and useful item it is not going to break the bank either.
