Description

JOHN SMITHEYS, London: a good 18th century English BRACKET CLOCK in full working order. The case is ebonised with an upper cast brass carrying handle and four traditional pineapple finials, with pierced fretwork panels to the upper corners of the front door. The 8-day movement retains its original verge escapement with a plain unengraved backplate and a dial that features mock pendulum; subsidiary date aperture and "Strike/Silent" control to the arch. It strikes hours on a bell and is signed to an engraved and silvered cartouche. 18ins high; 11ins wide; 7.75ins deep. (45.5 x 28 x 19.5cms). *John Draper SMITHEYS worked in London and was apprenticed in 1756
