Description

A wonderful 17th Century Italian walnut side cabinet with single drawer. With a lovely colour this rare cabinet dating to the 17th Century is constructed from solid walnut with a rectangular top with moulded edge sitting over a single drawer with three ovolo moulded edge panels two with brass handle and the central with brass escutcheon below which are two moulded panelled doors having central brass handles. Enclosing the doors are two Corinthian column panels with carved capitals and fluted columns with whole being raised on a shaped and moulded base. The cabinet still retains a numbered sticker to the inner drawer which can be seen in the images which usually was put on furniture when in a collection from a very important house / castle as a inventory check list. A lovely quality period cabinet in fantastic condition with great style and presence.
