Description

An unusual and interesting PAIR OF PORTRAITS, in wonderful original ornate carved and gilded frames. Probably early/mid 19th century, they depict (presumably) a man and his wife and appear to be painted on parchment.* Both are in excellent condition and retain their original slight domed convex glass fronts within particularly fine deep frames. *We have not removed these from the frames, so parchment is a tentative suggestion. These may, for example, be on ivory?
