Description

Isaac Antcher – Village View Through Trees – Oil On Board – Highly sought after c1950 Isaac Antcher (Ancer) 1899-1992 was born to a merchant family in Perececina, Bessarabia, near Kichinev in 1899. He started drawing at a very young age, and his artistic giftedness was visible from his early years. In the 1920's a young and fresh Antcher left Romania for Paris to join his brother in Calais, France. He later began studying under Raban at the Grand Chaumiere. Antcher's talent was discovered and acknowledged a year later in Paris, at the Beaux Arts, where he studied. His teachers included Cezanne and Pissaro, who were both very fond of him. At one point, he was taught by Abel Pann, Boris Shatz, and Raban at the Bezalel art school, in Jerusalem. Antcher married Fela Ber in 1926. Soon after, he displayed his art at the Salon De Auntonne and the Salon des Tuileries, where he proved to be a great success. His paintings were always in demand and he showed at all the main salons in Paris. His popularity continued to grow, and in 1927 he was convinced by the admission committee at the Salon d' Automne to sell the rights to his work to Lepold Zborowski, a respected and famous a...
