Description

An attractively carved antique oak gate-leg table, with D shaped drop leaves, turned supports and oblong stretchers. The base is 18th century with the top proably being a later marriage – although stylistically it works very well and is an attractive piece. A small size, would make a nice hall table, console or occasional table. Construction/Wood: Oak Condition Report: Some slight movement to joints as to be expected. Various wear and marks commensurate with age. A few small holes to the top. Top probably a later marriage to base. Dimensions: Height: 73cm Width: 88cm Closed- Depth: 36cm Open- Depth: 91cm
