Description

A fine quality Edwardian serpentine mahogany two door display cabinet. In the Robert Adams style having a moulded and carved serpentine cornice with fluted and carved patera frieze over two shaped glazed doors flanked by reeded columns and glazed panelled sides. The lower section having two quarter veneered panelled doors with raised moulding flanked by fluted ends raised on four reeded tapering turned legs united by a lower shaped tier. The top section opens to two glazed shelves and lower to a storage compartment. In excellent condition having been fully restored using traditional wax methods this Edwardian display cabinet has retained a lovely colour and patina. This is a very attractive cabinet which is of the best quality from its period.
